Forest bathing to Plogging, new fitness trends taking root in Kerala.

Because so much is happening with our thousands of groups around the world, it's impossible to summarize everything. In these newsletters, we therefore focus on what the founder, Erik Ahlström, is doing and which Plogging groups he visits and coaches.

Some of the international developments, our research reports, etc. – can be followed under “News” on our website www.plogga.se and via our social media channels.

JANUARY

India – PlogYatra Tour

We completed a month-long tour across India, called PlogYatra, where we plogged in dozens of cities—including Delhi, Pune, Mumbai, Chennai, and Pondicherry—together with small and large plogging organizations. Incredible to meet so many young activists who go out plogging every weekend. For example, Plogging Pune has plogged non-stop for several years!

We also launched a new project on Monroe Island, Plogging canals and waterways from kayaks in Kerala. We were thrilled when Plogging was named Kerala's top wellness trend of 2025:

This was the same beach where Chennai Ploggers took its earliest steps, where our idea of combining fitness with environmental action was first tested and nurtured. To see an international changemaker stand on the same sands, shoulder to shoulder with our community, felt like a circle completing itself. ## Denmark and bike Plogging.

MARCH

Elba, Italy

Back in Europe, we visited Elba, an island where ocean pollution is a growing concern. Together with elite runners from Scarpa, we proved that Plogging works even in heavy rain. If the trash ends up in the sea, it's nearly impossible to recover – so stopping it on land is key.

APRIL

Germany – Sport Conrad

We were featured in Sport Conrad's large Scandinavian sustainability campaign, and visited their Garmisch-Partenkirchen store – one of the cleanest towns we've Plogged in so far!

"Combining running with trash picking doesn't just clean up our planet – it energizes the soul. Our Plogging event with Sport Conrad in April was the perfect mix of movement, purpose, and joy. Erik's contagious energy made it unforgettable!" –Sport Conrad Team

Denmark – Danish Outdoor Festival

With about 50,000 visitors, this is one of Europe's biggest outdoor festivals. Together with our Norwegian partner Aclima, we gave several talks on the main stage.

"Aclima and Plogga have aligned interests in sustainability and against the use of plastic. In our reborn collection we tackle one of the textile industries greatest challenges, waste material. We have developed a process so that we can recycle and upcycle left over wool fabrics from our own factory." – Ole Magnus Halvorsen CMO at Aclima

Ericsson

For two years, we've had the privilege of Plogging with Ericsson employees and partners – across multiple cities and collecting many kilograms of trash. In India we Plogged in Dehli and in Sweden, in Kista and Gothenburg, and we can confidently say: it's getting cleaner every time!

"In 2024 over 1400 employees in 40 locations did Plogging to support World Clean Up movement across the world.

JUNE

Uppsala – Thermo Fisher

We awarded Plogga diplomas to the pharmaceutical giant Thermo Fisher for their commitment, following a successful event.

JULY

Hitch for Change, Czech Plogging Tour in Northern Europe

The most eco-friendly way to travel? Hitchhiking and ride-sharing. Our Czech friends did just that, Plogging their way through Northern Europe. In Stockholm,

Kiruna Relocation & Parliament Talks

Kiruna is moving due to mining – we joined discussions on sustainable urban development and met members of the Swedish Parliament to discuss Plogging's role.

"Litter is everyone's concern. In both the short and long term, all efforts to keep litter out of our environment must move in the same direction. We should not back into the future, but rather use our knowledge and experience to find balance in consumption."—Emma Ahlström Koster, member of the swedish parliament (Riksdagen (Moderate Party) from Southwest Skåne, Founder

Iceland – “Plokk” and kayak plogging

In Iceland, they've even coined their own word for plogging—Plokk. We teamed up with around 20 Rotary clubs and combined breathtaking nature experiences with kayak-based plogging, including a session with the Icelandic Minister for the Environment. We also gave talks on sustainable outdoor leadership.

Utefest – Järvsö, Sweden

Sweden's largest outdoor magazine, Utemagasinet, hosted the annual Utefest in Järvsö. We ran several Plogga sessions during Utefest in Järvsö with our partner Aclima. The interest in combining fitness, environmental action, and social impact continues to grow.

EAIE European Association for International Education—International Conference in Gothenburg

Around 7000 participants from all over the world gathered in Gothenburg for the EAIE conference. We had the honor of giving a keynote, on a tourist bus! We then took attendees to a neighborhood affected by illegal graffiti and litter, and Plogged together.

"We had a Plogga event for some of our delegates and it was a real success. The mix of people from all over the world helping the city of Gothenburg to get a little bit cleaner and also how they from Erik and his team learned more about litter and how important it is for all of us to keep our planet clean."—Anna Ekberg /Congress manager/MeaConsulting AB

OKTOBER

Ericsson Germany, Aachen

In the Germany city of Aachen, we visited the local Ericsson office. We held lectures and did "plog-walks" with staff, dividing into teams. In just a couple of hours, we collected over 80 kg of waste. A great example of how companies can create real, visible change.

"It has been a pleasure to have Erik's guidance on our plogging event. His presence and spirit were even boosting our anyhow high motivated team to go out for plogging. Erik made every minutes of it memorable from his arrival till his departure. His mood and spirit energized the whole team. At the end, we received a diploma for Ericsson Eurolab being now a licensed plogging ambassador! Thanks a lot Erik!"—Patrick Faucon Head of PDG MAHC EDD, Axel Bennemann Service Operations Manager

Plogging Power

Plogging bestaat sinds 2016. De Zweedse trailrunner Erik Ahlström verhuisde dat jaar vanuit het goede noorden van het land naar Stockholm. In de grote stad viel hem op hoeveel vuil er rondzwerft. In plaats van zich eraan te ergeren, bedacht Ahlström een nieuwe sportieve bezigheid: ploggen. Dat was een combinatie van plöcka upp (oprapen) en joggen. Zijn voorbeeld – tijdens zijn vaste trainingsronde stopte en bukte Ahlström gewoon net even wat vaker dan voorheen – kreeg al snel navolging, wereldwijd.

In Nederland is er een flinke, ongeorganiseerde community van ploggers. Lokaal is er een hechte band, maar de ploggers van het eerste uur uit den lande kennen elkaar vlochtig, van appgroepjes en events. Runner's World bracht drie van hen in Amsterdam bij elkaar voor een fotoreportage. En liet het bevolgen drietal hun verhaal doen. →

"Great meeting all our colleagues and a very special guest, Erik Ahlstrom, the founder and pioneer for organized plogging, joined our volunteering activity. Erik is an inspiring force of nature, and made this morning extra energetic. In total, more than 55 kg of litter has been collected and safely handed over to the community for professional disposal or recycling. What a great and meaningful team day. Many thanks to global sustainability for your support and establishing the connection to Erik and many thanks to the Ericsson Volunteering program for allowing Ericsson employees to spend their time to make something like this happen! And a special thanks to our Breda Volunteers."—Isabel van Oorschot Ericsson

Samarkand Marathon in Uzbekistan

When we travel long distances, we always try to extend our stays to explore the nature and surroundings and of course, we go Plogging wherever we go. When we received an invitation to lecture and plogging during the major international event Samarkand Marathon in Uzbekistan, we gladly accepted.

We plogged together with Tashkent Ploggers, visited the neighboring country of Tajikistan, and plogged alongside tourists and local guides, clearly demonstrating that we do not accept litter being left behind in nature.

Erik Ahlström – Environmental Hero of the Year 2025

One of Plogga's greatest achievements during its ten-year journey was being awarded WWF's Environmental Hero of the Year 2025, presented by Her Royal Highness Crown Princess Victoria of Sweden.

The day after the award ceremony, Erik invited the Plogging community to a "bubble plogging" event at Readventure in central Stockholm. Together with around 20 Plogga ambassadors, the event was filled with laughter and positive energy. As often happens, the event attracted media attention, this time from a major South Korean TV network eager to document something they considered uniquely Swedish, as Plogging.

DECEMBER

Colombia

Some of Plogga's very first plogging groups were established in Colombia and Mexico. Since 2018, these organizations have been operating full-time nationwide and also coordinating Plogging activities across South America.

Erik began his stay in Colombia by plogging and lecturing at Ericsson's headquarters in Bogotá.

Carolina López the founder of Plogging Colombia show us the lack of waste management.

Together with the founders of Plogging Colombia (Viviana Saavedra and Carolina López) and Plogging Mexico (Elisa Apátiaga), a ten-day plogging tour was carried out across the country. During the tour, we hosted workshops, bike plogging sessions, visits to organizations, recycling centers, environmental hubs, festivals, and even organized outdoor cinema screenings with an environmental theme.
